SUPPORT GIVEN CITY OFFICIALS

Many Patrons of Local Utility Company Discuss Demands to be Made by City.

REDUCED RATES ADVOCATED

Few Grievances are Presented but Citizens Thought Electric Charges Too High.

Demands of the City.

Rate of seven cents per kilowatt for both domestic and commercial electric light service. A meter rent or minimum charge of fifty cents per month. Rate of three per kilowatt for power. Adjustment in favor of the city of the street lighting contract.

At an enthusiastic meeting at the council chamber Tuesday night in which city officials, business men, manufacturers and citizens participated, it was agreed that the city officials should take a firm stand for the above demands in the conference to be held with the representatives of the Interstate Public Service Company in the near future. The exact date for the conference here has not yet been fixed but Mayor Ross is expecting a letter from the Indiana Public Service Commission regarding the matter in a few days. In a former letter the commission stated that it was ready to hear the arguments of the city and in reply Mayor Ross stated that the city would be ready any time after the citizens' meeting and expressed a hope that it would not be postponed for longer than a week or ten days.

Mayor Ross Presides.

Mayor Ross presided at the meeting Tuesday night and briefly outlined the city's attempt to secure a lower electric light and power rate for the patrons of the local company. He stated that at a similar conference recently a reduction had been secured in the gas rates and the council and himself were hopeful that similar results would be obtained in this fight. He said he wanted the citizens present to feel free to express their views upon the question and to tell of any grievances they might have against the local utility. He also asked for ideas and suggestions which could be used in solving the question for the best interests of the citizens.

City Attorney Speaks.

City Attorney Albert Kasting was called upon and stated that the commission had sent its accountants here to make a financial survey of the local property, its operating expenses and income and it was upon this report that he had based his figures. He said that the statement showed that the net operating revenue, after all overhead expense, salaries, interest on bonds, etc., had been paid was $15,000. He further stated that the revenue from commercial and domestic lighting was $18,000 and the city light amount to $9,000 for the year included in the statement.

Valuation of Plants.

The council had been advised that the valuation of both the electric and gas plants, which are operated as a unit, was about $150,000 and asked for suggestions as to what the electric plant alone was actually worth. Later it was stated that the council believed that the electric plant was actually worth $100,000. In the financial report filed by the accountants the statement was made that the company figured the electric plant as being worth fifty-nine per cent. of the total value of the entire property and so divided its expenses of operation. The city attorney asked for an expression as to what the citizens believed would be a reasonable domestic charge.

Andrews Favors Reduction.

Councilman Andrews, who has given the question much study, said he desired to know whether the citizens desired the decrease in rates which the city hopes to get to be principally in domestic lighting or in the street lighting. He said that personally he thought the reduction should be made

PRESIDENT OF I.U. WILL SPEAK HERE

Superintendent Mott Announces an Educational Meeting at High School Thursday.

PUBLIC CORDIALLY INVITED

Scholarship Given in Memory of E. B. Thompson Will be Mentioned by Speakers.

Superintendent Mott today announced that an educational meeting would be held at the high school assembly room Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All patrons of the schools and citizens generally are given a cordial invitation to attend as some interesting addresses will be given.

Superintendent Mott has been notified that President W. L. Bryan of Indiana University, and J. P. Pearcey, of Indianapolis, state high school inspector, will be present and both will give talks. Mr. Pearcey holds the position that was created by the last legislature. He has inspected the local high school and had some very complimentary things to say concerning the management, the course of study and the schools in general.

During the meeting formal announcement will be made of the gift of Mrs. E. Blish Thompson of a scholarship to the local high school at the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale. By this scholarship some boy is given an opportunity to obtain a complete scientific education without cost to himself or parents as the arrangements provide for his expenses while taking the course.

The details of the plans and the requirements may not be announced at the meeting Thursday as the papers have not been received from the Yale authorities. Superintendent Mott has written for a copy of them and expects them to arrive here in a few days, although it is hardly possible that they can be announced Thursday.

President Bryan and Mr. Pearcey will speak concerning the meaning and value of the E. B. Thompson scholarship, which is the largest that has ever been given to an Indiana high school. The students of the high school department are much interested in the scholarship and as soon as the details are announced it will likely have much to do with the courses that the boys will take in the future.

The meeting Thursday promises to be one of the most interesting ever held in the local schools and a large number of citizens and patrons is expected to attend.

This week is electric week. Make it your Christmas shopping week. Big reductions on everything electrical for this week. Some elegant Christmas gifts.

MANY ENTRIES AT COUNTY CORN SHOW

J. S. Helms, of Richmond, will Begin Task of Judging the Displays Thursday Morning.

SURPRISES FOR THE VISITORS

Medora and Cortland High School Have Splendid Exhibits—Entertainment Features.

Many surprises are awaiting visitors who will attend the first Jackson County Corn Show which is being held in the Buhner Garage, South Chestnut street, today. The Show will be in progress during the remainder of this week.

As the first day was the time set aside for receiving the entries the number of visitors today was not large, but practically every farmer that did attend brought an armload of high grade corn with him. From 150 to 200 entries have been received and a few more were expected late today.

The committee in charge of the Show spent the entire day at the garage arranging the tables and booths where the displays will be made. The entries from each township will be kept separate. Brownstown township sent a large number of entries and the growers in that section of the county were confident of carrying away the prizes. At noon today practically every township was represented. County Agent Cobb, who has been actively interested in the Show, was elated with the entries and predicted that it would attract wide attention.

The interior of the garage is decorated with flags and bunting. The decorations were also carried to the front of the building and across the sidewalk is a large sign so that strangers will have no trouble in finding the place where the exhibits are made.

The Medora schools furnished an agreeable surprise by sending a large exhibit furnished by the agricultural and domestic science classes. It was arranged by Harry Henderson, instructor in agriculture, and Miss Inez Howard, domestic science teacher. They were assisted in arranging the display by Lucian Henderson, Ernest McMillan, Mark Smith, Frank DeLay, Erma McMillan, Hilda Davis and Gertrude Carr, pupils, who were given credits for laboratory work for the day they spent here.

Cortland is also represented with an agricultural display.

J. S. Helms, of Richmond, who will judge the corn, arrived early today and assisted in arranging the exhibits. He will judge the township contests by comparison and for the benefit of the farmers will score the winners which will be entered in the county contest. He will begin work Thursday.

Thursday night at the Majestic Theater Prof. G. I. Christie, of Purdue University, will speak. It is announced that vaudeville acts for the entertainment of the visitors will be staged at the garage on Thursday and Friday afternoons and possibly on Thursday night before the meeting at the Majestic. Entertainment by home talent may also be arranged if the crowd justifies additional entertainment.

SOCIALISTS ARE UNABLE TO AGREE

Week's Recess of the Reichstag is Likely to Enable Leaders to Get Factions Together

By United Press.
(By Carl H. Ackerman, United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Berlin, December 1.—A split threatens the socialists' ranks in the Reichstag.

Exciting caucuses are being held. A week's recess of the Reichstag is likely. In this time the socialist leaders hope to get the factions together, but their realize that it will be difficult.

One group in insistent on a government statement of the peace terms that Germany will accept. The other believes this will be a concession of weakness. There is also a difference of opinion over the government food regulations. One side is satisfied with the present methods and the other considers them ineffective.

MINISTERS OF AUSTRIA FILE THEIR RESIGNATIONS

Assumption is That They Favored Separate Peace for Their Country and Were Overruled.

By United Press.
Amsterdam, December 1.—The emperor of Austria today accepted the resignations of his ministers of finance, interior and commerce, according to Vienna dispatches.

The three resignations are associated in diplomatic circles with the reports that these diplomatic leaders have been discussing a separate peace for their country. The natural assumption is they favored such a step and were overruled.

Serbs Making no Effort to Resist the Pursuing Forces—Opportunities for Ambush.

By United Press.
Berlin, December 1.—Teutonic and Bulgarian troops were across the Serb frontier to-day pursuing the fleeing Serbs southward in Albania.

The Serbs were making no resistance. Desperate men descended on the pursuing men at every point. On account of the roughness of the country through which the pursuit is made opportunities for ambushes are numerous.

BUENZ DENIES HE ATTEMPTED TO EVADE CUSTOM HOUSE LAWS

Managing Director of Hamburg-American Line Testified in His Own Defense.

By United Press.
New York, December 1.—Dr. Carl Buenz, managing director of the Hamburg-American line, testified in his own defense today that he had directed scrupulous observance of all American laws in clearing vessels from American ports to furnish supplies to German warships. Buenz denies he attempted to evade the custom house authorities by giving false destinations for his ships.

"We wanted our ships to go to their stated destinations even if they were emptied by warships at sea," he said.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF WILSON

Chemist Held at Cleveland Who is Believed to Have Talked With "Two Men."

INVENTOR OF LIQUID FIRE

Agent of Justice Department Investigates and is to Forward Reports to Washington.

By United Press.
Cleveland, December 1.—An attempt on the life of President Wilson and Secretary of War Garrison with liquid fire was proposed according to information alleged to have been obtained by County Prosecutor Cyrus Locher from E. W. Ritter, chemist, under arrest here, it was learned this afternoon. A court stenographer's record purporting to be that taken while Locher was examining Ritter, stated that the plan was suggested by "two men high is official life."

Dr. Ritter held on a fraudulent check charge, denied he had made such a statement to Locher. Charles DeWittody, special agent of the department of justice, who has been trailing Ritter for a year, swore to the warrant served on the chemist. DeWittody has been investigating bomb plots.

Ritter admits he invented the original "liquid fire."

This is part of the statement Locher is alleged to have obtained from Ritter.

"Two men, high in official life, came to me and proposed that my liquid fire be used to sprinkle on President Wilson and Secretary of War Garrison."

"No!," I exclaimed. That would be terrible. I'll never do it.

"Well," said the two men, 'Let us not talk about it.'"

This question was then asked Ritter.

"Why wasn't it proposed to shoot the president?"

"The men said shooting would mean arrest. With liquid fire you shoot it from a rubber ball on a person's clothes and go away. In a few minutes, poof! the liquid fire flames."

This alleged record was ordered by DeWittody who is to forward it to Washington.

President Gives Verdict.

By United Press.
Washington, December 1.—President Wilson will not sanction any new rivers and harbors legislation, he informed Representative Sparksman, of Florida, chairman of the house committee of rivers and harbors, today. These appropriations must be cut to the bone, the president said.

More Indictments.

By United Press.
Washington, December 1.—That whole grand jury indictments at San Francisco will probably follow the arrest there of C. C. Crowley, charged with violation of the neutrality laws, was learned today.

SUPPORT GIVEN

in the city lighting as all citizens whether patrons of the local company or not, were charged for this service, and should be benefitted accordingly.

Mayor Ross stated that he had data in hand which showed that Seymour is paying for street lighting 16 per cent. more than twenty-two other cities of this class. A Wisconsin report which he secured shows that ten cities of this size are paying about $5,000 a year for street lights. Richmond, he said, three times the size of Seymour, is paying $11,000 for street lighting against $9,000 paid here.

Faith in City Officials.

Albert H. Ahlbrand, head of the Ahlbrand Carriage Company, was next called upon. He said he thought the citizens generally appreciated the earnest efforts of the Mayor and the council to secure a better light and power rate and were not unmindful of the reduction recently secured in the gas rates. He said he had no complaint to make against the local company. However, he said, he would like to see the rates generally reduced and believed most of the citizens felt the same way.

Mr. Ahlbrand said that in making a settlement it ought to be remembered that the plant here was not municipally owned and was conducted for profit, and consequently many questions must be considered that are frequently overlooked in a plant owned and operated by the city. He stated that in his opinion the minimum charge known as the meter rent was too high as it probably prevented many persons from using electric lights. He thought that about fifty cents a month would be a proper and reasonable meter rent. Mr. Ahlbrand stated that in his opinion the charge should be so reasonable that every resident could have advantage of the service. Particular attention ought to be given the rate for power, he said, as this is an important item in securing new factories to locate here. He referred to the time when his factory was burned down and said that other cities offered sites and as an inducement could give power service at 1½ to 1¾ cents per kilowatt.

Andrews again spoke and said the financial report recently filed stated that the cost of manufacturing the current here was .0375 per kilowatt. The cost of distribution was additional to this, according to the report.

Fifty-Cent Meter Charge.

Harry M. Miller, secretary of the Commercial Club, was in favor of a fifty cent meter charge. Andrews said this was one of the most difficult questions to decide as the income of the company was based largely upon the number of patrons paying the minimum rate. Here this number is large as shown by the report of the accountants. In settling the gas rate, he said, the city had urged a thirty-five cent minimum gas charge but Commissioner Clark fixed the same at fifty cents and said that would be fair. It was explained that the Commission allows a utility to fix the minimum charge upon the basis of cost of such service whether the current to that amount is used or not.

Actual Valuation Needed.

C. H. Ahlbrand, a member of the council, said that in his opinion an actual valuation was necessary before a basis of rates could be determined. He was in favor of having the commercial and domestic rate the same and explained that many offices were prevented from having the service now as they were rated as business houses and were charged accordingly. He thought that a lower rate would induce them to accept the service.

J. E. Graham Gives Views.

J. E. Graham, of the Hodapp Home Company, said he thought the citizens should stand back of the council and mayor as they were in a position to get the best possible rates. He believed the manufacturing interests of the city demanded a lower rate and thought it could be used to obtain other factories here.

Twelve Cents Too High.

L. C. Griffiths, of the Seymour Mutual Telephone Company, said that there was no argument about 12 cents being too high. He referred to the franchise which provided that certain kinds of lamps should be used and if others giving the same candle-power were later invented and used the city should get the resultant benefit. He said that the best way to reach a low rate was to have a scientific valuation placed on the plant, but as this would require probably five years including the fight before the commission he was in favor of compromising on the best possible terms. By such a compromise, he stated, the patrons were immediately given the benefit of the lower schedules. He said that if the compromise settlement was not entirely satisfactory the question could be taken before the commission later after a scientific valuation had been placed on the property.

Advocates Uniform Rate.

Allen Swope, postmaster and former mayor, believed the matter ought to be left with the city officials. He advocated the same rate for both business houses and residences. "We all want lower rates and will be satisfied with the compromise the officials make," he said in closing.

Council Faces Fight.

Dr. J. M. Shields, also a former city executive, was called upon and said that whatever is accomplished will be a benefit to the electric consumers. He thought the minimum should be fixed low enough so that electric lights could be installed in the homes of citizens of modest means. He complimented the mayor and councilmen upon the sincerity in the matter. "You'll have to fight for what you get and fight hard," he said. "The company won't give you a lower rate because it loves you. You'll have a hard fight." He said he was satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the officials.

Low Power Desired.

G. H. Anderson, owner of the North Chestnut street elevator, said lower power rates were necessary to bring manufacturing plants here. He thought a meter charge of fifty cents would be reasonable.

Deducting Taxes.

H. F. McColgin, of the I. & L. Company, explained the method of deducting for taxation. He said every utility was required to make allowance for depreciation.

"Some" Inheritance.

C. H. Williams, proprietor of the Dreamland Electric Theater, said that the report showed that he was paying more than the Majestic theater. Albert Kasting explained that a representative of the utility company under question, had explained that the Majestic had "inherited the rate it is paying and that it would be adjusted later.

"Fine inheritance for the company," interposed Mr. Williams.

It was stated that the alleged discriminations in rates now would be adjusted when the settlement is reached.

Interesting Bills.

Herman Chambers, proprietor of the Palace Restaurant, took the floor and read two monthly bills for light only. One was for $22.72 and the following month he made $36.50.

Charge For Power.

Councilman Hodapp brought up the charge made for power. He said that $1 was charged for each horsepower whether the machine is used or not. It was stated that this is a fixed expense. It is not supposed, it was stated, that a factory will install a motor of greater capacity than is needed to run its machines and the company is required to furnish that much power any time it is needed.

Ernest Denk, of the Seymour Ice Cream Company, stated that his company was unable to install a number of new machines because the utility wanted to charge one dollar per horsepower for power as a minimum rate and such a charge was excessive.

Street Lights Mentioned.

Fred Able suggested that the council give attention to the proposed cluster lamps in the business section in an effort to get a low rate for this service.

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission.)

"Indianapolis was a rendezvous for returning and departing troops. They needed a place for rest and refreshment. . . . An agent was placed at the railway station to attend the arrival and departure of trains and furnish meals and lodging." Later the federal government at Morton's instance, erected a building, furnished by the state, where the soldiers were fed and sheltered on their way back and forth. Before the close of the war two other buildings were erected. The expense of maintaining these buildings was borne by the Indiana Sanitary commission, organized by the governor.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1915.

Even Denver with its commission form of government is experiencing the thrills of a depleted treasury. The city is so badly in need of funds that the commissioners want to sell the voting machines. This twentieth century edition of city government is heralded as a panacea for all municipal ills, but after all it appears that efficient managements depends upon the officials who have been entrusted with power. It don't make any difference whether the public servants are called commissioners, councilmen or city managers.

A splendid spirit of cooperation is being shown between the farmers and the citizens of Seymour. As this city is the principal trading center for a large vicinity the residents of the country and city are dependent upon each other. The success of one depends largely upon the prosperity of the other. Seymour merchants are doing much that is of benefit to the surrounding country, and it is fully appreciated by those benefitted.

Christmas is the time of the year when friendliness and brotherly love ought to be felt in every home. A thought of the unfortunate and a little contribution for the Christmas fund will make somebody happy later and will make your own Christmas much brighter. Giving to such funds should be free will offerings. Think it over and decide if you want to help a little.

If the city officials are successful in getting their demands through the proposed electric rate conference the citizens will be presented with a substantial Christmas gift. Such a reduction in rates would bring happiness into the home of every electric light user at least.

A big fight must be brewing in Mexico. It has been sixty hours since a report of an "outbreak" has been made.

THAT INTENSIVE HEN
The Hen laid an egg and cackled her head off;
The Goose laid an egg and never opened her head.
Do you ever have a call for a goose egg?

Moral: Sell Advertised Goods.
And it might be added to this time honored philosophy that the hen is an intensive advertiser.
She does her cackling in the vicinity of the egg and does not try to cover the continent with one faint squawk.
She disposes of her goods at the most convenient market—seeking the short cut from production to demand.
If she used the printed word she would be a constant newspaper advertiser.

The Big Electric Man.

(Electrical Prosperity Week, November 29-December 2.)

The big men dare and the big men do;
Their electric dreams they make come true,
They bridge the rivers and link the plains,
And gird the land with their 'lectric atrins;
They change the desert to Eden's land
And string new power over the sand
To spin the wheels of a thousand mills,
And turn coin saved to the people's tills.
The big men work and the big men plan
And helping themselves, help their fellow man,
And the dull man yelps at their motor's wheels,
As the small dog barks at the big dog's heels.
And the big men smile as they point the way,
"Do It Electrically," you hear them say.
—Apologies to Walt Whitman.

In other words, the electric people are endeavoring to show us the Watt's what of industry.

We have not as yet received our invitation to go to Europe with Henry Ford, but doubt if we could get away right now anyway.

No Not One.

Breathes there a shopper, with imagination so dead,
Who never to herself hath said,
As the holiday windows she surveyed
In all their gilt and glamor arrayed—
"I just must do my Christmas shopping soon."

Suggestion to vaudeville musicians: When responding to encores, why not play "Silver Threads Among the Gold?"

Johnnie: "Say, wonder why a fellow couldn't arrange to pray for his bread once a week instead of daily?"

Willie: "Well, wudye want to eat stale bread?"

The only difference between Bryan's and Ford's Peace at Any Price ideas seems to be that Henry is willing to put up the price.

If it isn't one thing to worry about it's another. Congress is to convene next week.

What has become of the old henpecked married man who used to write, "Reflections of a Bachelor?"

Nautical News.

W. J. Bryan, who recently resigned his position as pilot on the good Ship of State, is being considered for the job of first mate on the Oscar.

Our All Seymour Team.

Now that the football season is over, and it seems to be quite the proper thing to do to pick the all-star teams, we have been requested to select an all-star Seymour team. From the wealth of material to choose from this is a difficult task, but we have endeavored to name a team which we believe could hold its own with any organization in these parts. This selection is made partly from our own observation, and partly from reports of critics and coaches who have been following the progress of the various players. The line up follows: left end, Bill Geile; left tackle, John Groub; left guard and captain, Oscar Abel; center, Bruce Stewart; right end, Frank Voss; right tackle, Alf Reynolds; right guard, Chick Wallace; quarter back, Steve Rogers; right half back, Otto Bauermeister; left half back, George Lambring; full back, George Peters.

At the ends, Mr. Geile has had years of experience as end man in minstrels and similar affairs, and Mr. Voss is also adept at handling things at the end of the line. The two tackles, Groub and Reynolds, are both good men, and would be towers of strength in both defense and offense. Abel and Wallace are placed at the guard positions because of their experience and training, and Abel is named as captain because of his able record in captaining the National Guard. Bruce Stewart is unanimously chosen for center because of his all round ability. Steve Rogers has been running engines and engineers so long and so well that he ought to make an ideal man to run the team, so he is placed at quarter. At the halves, George Lambring has an enviable record for forward passing parcel post packages at the postoffice, and tossing the pigskin thirty or forty yards would be easy for him. Otto Bauermeister is given the other half position because of his line smashing ability, and George Peters is placed at full back by almost all the critics. Several other players are deserving of mention, but we have decided not to name a second team. They might want to arrange a game and somebody would get hurt.

MASTERS AND SON COMPLETE
STREET PAVING AT ANDERSON

90,000 Square Yards of Reinforced Concrete Are Laid During the Summer and Fall Season.

Masters & Son, as contractors, have finished their season's work at Anderson. During the summer and fall they laid 90,000 square yards of concrete streets and established a record in Indiana for concrete work of this kind. They also established a daily record for laying concrete when they put down 980 yards in ten hours. The work at Anderson started the latter part of May and was completed Saturday. Although there were many days of rainy weather during the summer when nothing could be done, and during the last few weeks frost has interfered, yet the work was completed in record time and Anderson papers speak very highly of the manner in which the contract was handled.

The total contract price of the work was about $157,000. The work was done with one mixer and one grade gang. Materials for paving included 108 carloads of cement,
18,000 cubic yards of gravel, about 500,000 square feet of steel reinforcing. An average of eighteen teams of horses, forty teams at one time; and 80 men, 115 at one time; supplied the working force, with a concrete mixer.

Masters & Son will bid on considerable paving to be constructed in Madison county next year, and for which contracts will be let December 15 and February 1.

Our Friend the Doctor

A doctor is a member of the greatest and most beneficent and unselfish of all the learned professions. We just at the doctors in our hours of health, but when disease seizes upon the strength of manhood, when even the mighty Caesar cries like a sick child, when the hour of pain is upon us, then, in the hushed chamber and by the lonely lamp of the watcher, we invoke the merciful ministrations of the doctor, and with willing feet he comes through the storm and darkness, and with skill and patience and courage he battles with disease and beats back death from the house of life.—Los Angeles

THE PUREST OF CHEWS IS "OLD KENTUCKY"

Perfect Plugs Produced by the Most Wholesome
Methods

ITS FLAVOR A DELIGHT

There's more genuine tobacco enjoyment in a rich, mellow, juicy chew of high-grade plug than in any other form of tobacco.

And there's no plug made that is so delicious and appetizing as Old Kentucky. It has the fresh, sweet, mellow taste that Nature gives the tobacco leaf. You get real tobacco flavor in Old Kentucky—and you get it pure.

From the time the ripe Burley leaf reaches our factory, until it goes out to gladden your taste with its rich flavor in golden brown plugs of Old Kentucky, it is kept pure by the most modern methods ever applied to the making of chewing tobacco.

No factory could possibly be cleaner or more sanitary than the great, new factory in which Old Kentucky is made.

For a good chew—get a plug of Old Kentucky.

Try a 10c plug to-day.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Turning of the Tide.

IT was a sad and chastened little company that met in the office next morning. Peale was cast down for once in his life. Mary was pensive, and only Rodney knew that inner glow that gives the silver lining to the cloud of ill luck and poverty. Mary had kissed him. He must put that in his book of days.

Mary looked at him anxiously and seemed relieved to find him not entirely cast down. She had been wretched herself, she said, worrying over the betrayal of her lover to the old soap king and began again to bemoan her bad break.

"Oh, Rodney, Rodney," she said to him, "it was all my fault! Your father had no idea of the truth. I didn't understand. I told him about our company—I did it all—betrayed you."

"But you didn't mean to. It's all right, Mary," said Rodney, reassuring her.

"You forgive me?" asked Mary, looking him in the eyes.

"Why, of course—I love you," he said simply.

"Oh, Rodney, I'm so sorry!" Mary began again.

"But if father thinks just because he laced into me I'm licked he's all wrong," he declared stoutly. "Maybe I have been a fake, but, by George, I won't be any longer!"

"You're really going on?" Mary asked.

"When I've got you you bet I am," declared Rodney. "Do you really think a long speech from father and no money to work with are enough to stop me for a minute, but I'm not a quitter, and I'll prove it. I'll get out of this mess the best way I can, and then I'll shine shoes or sell peanuts. I'll start at the bottom instead of finishing there. I'll make money—I'll!"

"Oh, Rodney, Rodney, now I am proud of you!" Mary interrupted.

Good old Ambrose Peale had been most sympathetic that morning too.

"Peale, I'm sorry," said Rodney, "but you're fired."

"Oh, no, little boss," said Peale, "you can't fire me! I'm just going to stick around, whatever happens."

Ambrose stuck. In fact, they all stuck. They decided to pay the balance of the month's rent out of their assets and gave a note to Jones to stave him off, as Peale said. Mary protested that a note was money; that it had to be paid some time, but Peale declared that time was money too, and something was sure to happen in the next thirty or sixty days. He felt it in his bones. He pegged away at his advertising meanwhile. It was his dissipation, the liquor in which he drowned his woes, and it is even of record that one specially clever stunt was instrumental in getting the redoubtable Jones to accept the 13 Soap Company's note.

He had books on the science of advertising, too, spread on his desk and may or may not have read them all. Mary's private opinion was that he had not, but that he only drew moral comfort from the outsidings of them. At any rate it was astonishing to see how many there were. It was positively pathetic, Mary thought, sometimes to see him poring over this "literature" or sitting there scribbling his ads. when the business of shining shoes, which Rodney had threatened to adopt, would have produced more real money for him.

It was the irony of fate that Old Cyrus Martin's $5,000, meant to keep parking care from Mary's shoulders, should have been spent in two days in advertising by Ambrose Peale. The explanation of this $5,000 must be made to Rodney some day too. Every once in awhile he grew curious about it. But Ambrose didn't measure it in dollars and cents, only in terms of space, and still less did he care where it came from. Truly he was a fiend on copy. He would study and expound the signs which they could see from the office windows, while Mary, Rodney and Miss Burke would all listen spellbound when there were no callers, as often happened. Not enough white space, he would cry of one emblazonment. Not big enough, he would say. Doesn't bring out the right point, was another criticism. Ain't clear—not true—no punch, et cetera, et cetera.

If only they had just made soap, Mary couldn't help thinking sometimes, as all this talk rang in her ears. If only they had just made soap and made it good. Good wine needs no bush, was an ancient proverb she came to believe in. By the same token, good soap would need no ads.

Now, the funniest part of the whole thing, speaking of advertising, was that the 13 Soap, the old family cook-book soap, was really good. Mary had always been loyal to it from the first time she had used it. She had given it to some friends for Christmas, and they had liked it, too, and said they would "talk it up." She had gone to a store and bought a holly covered box and laid three cakes in it neatly done up in tissue paper and red ribbon, with a stamp showing Santa Claus and a legend, "Not to be opened till Christmas," on the outside.

"We must spell Christmas with an X this year," said Rodney chaffingly. "Let X equal the unknown quantity."

"We'll see," said Mary, smiling.

She simply must go on hoping and smiling or she should die. It was counting your chickens before they were hatched no doubt, but, then, you might never get a chance to count them later, she told herself pathetically. She had superintended the first experiments at soapmaking and figured out the manufacturing costs. They must be ready, she had always maintained. She even bought a book on elementary chemistry and had dreams of a large soap works, like old Mr. Martin's, where an army of self supporting girls should be put to work under the best hygienic and sanitary conditions, and the minimum wage should be a generous one. She did succeed in getting a few gross of 13 Soap made after the old book formula. In the loft there were a few piles of it, the genuine 13, ranged alongside the pink castle in old rose wrappers. As a matter of fact she had had to give up manufacturing on any large scale, because their advertising took all their money, but Mary cherished the idea of taking up the work in earnest some day again. She didn't really believe much in the idea of making old Mr. Martin buy them out. Already she had more ambitious designs than that for her man Rodney.

"You're really going on?"

The darkest hour comes just before the dawn, and dawn came with a sudden burst of glory one morning when Ambrose Peale flew into the office in great excitement, interrupting Mary and Rodney in a long embrace. Always discreet and tactful, he coughed and scraped his feet as a signal to them to break away.

"Say, I didn't mean to interrupt," he apologized.

Rodney kept his arms around Mary.

"Nothing in the world can interrupt us," he said. "What is it?"

"A telegram," said Peale. "It's the first we've ever had. I was afraid to open it."

Mary came over to him and looked at it nervously.

"What awful thing can it be?" she queried.

"Gee, I wonder what it says!" came from Rodney.

"Read it, read it!" said Peale, afraid to do himself.

So then Mary opened it and read:

Rodney Martin, President 13 Soap Company, 339 Broadway—

"Go on, we know the address," Peale broke in impatiently.

Mary went on:

Ship at once, collect, 50,000 cakes 13 Soap. Signed, BROWN & JAMES, Chicago.

A profound silence fell upon the trio. The colossal number of 50,000 and the magic name of Brown & James had overpowered them. It was far too good to be true.

"Somebody really wants to buy some of our soap," echoed Rodney stupidly. "I don't believe it," said Peale.

"But here it is," said Mary, handing the telegram to Rodney, so that he might view it with his own eyes at close range.

"Fifty thousand cakes," said Rodney; "it's true."

Then Peale burst out joyfully; the tide had turned.

"We've started—we've begun!" he yelled; "we're actually going to sell some soap."

"The tide's turned," said Rodney; "didn't I tell you advertising pays?"

We'll sweep the country—Europe—Asia—Africa. Go in with father? Not for a million dollars!

"I'll wire Brown & James right away," said Peale briskly.

"Go ahead, do," said Rodney.

But an exclamation from Mary made them both turn.

"What is it?" asked Peale nervously. "What's happened?" asked Rodney.

"That order is no good. We can't fill it—we've never made any soap," said Mary with a sinking heart.

"What shall we do?" quavered Rodney.

"Let's think," said Peale hopefully. They sat staring straight ahead dully, till finally Rodney remarked slowly:

"We must get some soap."

"Yes, I thought of that," said Peale.

"Where can we get it?" Mary asked them deliberately.

"From a soap factory!" Peale suggested.

"But they all belong to your father," Mary reminded him.

Meanwhile Rodney had a ray of dawning hope.

"But he can't know about this Brown & James order—maybe we could buy some soap before he'd have a chance to stop them selling to us!"

"Great idea—let's get busy," said Peale, taking him up promptly.

"How?" asked Mary.

"Where's the phone book? Rodney asked, and grabbed the red classified directory from his desk.

"We'll call up two or three of his branch offices."

KING PETER OF SERBIA FLEES BEFORE BULGARS

Leaves Prisrend on Horseback with Attendant Before Capture of Town.

By United Press. Berlin, December 1. (Via Sayville) —King Peter of Serbia fled on horseback from Prisrend Sunday afternoon, the day before the Bulgars captured the town, according to a Sofia telegram received here today. Where he is now the Bulgars do not know. With him in his flight is Prince Troubetzkoy, Russian ambassador to Serbia. The king and his Russian companion were without attendants. Prisrend's capture by the Bulgars was reported in an official statement dated Monday. The fight for the town was short and resulted in the capture of from 16,000 to 17,000 Serbs and quantities of war materials.

PEOPLE'S SAYSO.

The Responsibility.

Your reference to and position taken in the matter of our shade trees and the malicious butchery of them, that is going on from time to time, should be commended by all of our people and yet the men who do the actual work should not be criticized too harshly, since their very job depends upon obeying the orders of some so-called superintendent or his immediate underling who assumes, that by virtue of his position, he can be as impudent as he desires, trample upon the rights of the public and the private citizen as often as he wishes and then help yourself if you can. Instead of condemning the man who climbs the tree and with hatchet and saw actually does the work of destruction, get after the fellow clothed with a little title of Superintendent or Manager and show him where to head in or take the consequences. When this class of fellows are taught their place and that the public have some rights they must respect, then their impudence and presumption will cease and not before.

ONLY ONE APPEAL OF PRIMARY LAW

Attorney-General Stotsenburg Wishes Interested Parties to Consolidate All Issues.

TWO CASES ARE NOW PENDING

Section 10 of the Statute Passed by 1915 Legislature is Part Attacked.

By United Press. Indianapolis, December 1.—All issues against the Jones primary law may be joined before the supreme court and the whole matter of the constitutionality of the law may be thrashed out at one time. This was the opinion of the Attorney-General Stotsenburg today.

He said that if those back of the case attacking section 10 to be appealed from Marion county did not ask to have that case consolidated with the one from Floyd county he would do so.

He expects those interested in the Marion county case to ask such action. The primary law case from Floyd county is set for a hearing before the supreme court on December 15.
